

Canterbury Law Review

Volume 29

-2022-

1 - 206

Contents

Women and the Legal Profession Justice Susan Glazebrook	1 - 26
Building the Foundations of Tikanga Jurisprudence Sarah Down and David V Williams	27 - 56
A Survey of Ministerial Compliance with the Official Information Act 1982 Gwen Hamilton and Edward Willis	57 - 88
Making Gang Laws in a Panic: Lessons from the 1990s and Beyond Jarrod Gilbert	89 - 114
A Nation Cast Adrift? A Legal and Historical Analysis of Tikanga Māori for the Purposes of General Common Law Application Nuku Tau	115 - 150
Canterbury Law Review Student Prize 2021 Domestic Violence Against Women in Melanesia: A Barrier to Gender Equity Shelby-Samantha Hager	151 - 192
Book Review In the Absence of a Jury: Examining Judge Alone Rape Trials by Elisabeth McDonald Scott Optican	193 - 202
The Constitution of New Zealand: A Contextual Analysis by Matthew S R Palmer and Dean R Knight W. John Hopkins	203 - 206

General Editor: Dr Toni Collins
Editorial Assistant: Christine Whittle

The Canterbury Law Review is published annually by the Canterbury Law Review Trust at the University of Canterbury.

The Review is available on direct subscription by writing to:

The Business Manager
Canterbury Law Review
Faculty of Law
University of Canterbury
Private Bag 4800
Christchurch
New Zealand.

Email: clr-ed@canterbury.ac.nz

Back issues of the Review are available.

North American readers should obtain subscriptions from the sole North American agent:

Wm W Gaunt & Sons Inc
Law Book Dealers
3011 Gulf Drive
Gaunt Building
Holmes Beach
Florida 34217 - 2199
USA

This is Volume 29: (2022) Canta LR
© Canterbury Law Review Trust

Printed by Canterbury Educational Printing Services

ISSN 0112-0581 (Print)
ISSN 2815-8687 (Online)

Guidelines for Contributors

Contributions to the Canterbury Law Review are welcome.

Manuscripts should be submitted to:

The Editor
Canterbury Law Review
Law Faculty
University of Canterbury
Private Bag 4800
Christchurch
New Zealand.

Authors may email submissions to: clr-ed@canterbury.ac.nz

Papers should comply with the following guidelines:

1. Papers should be submitted in electronic form using Microsoft Word.
2. All references should comply with the requirements of the New Zealand Law Style Guide.
3. Articles may be accepted at any length up to a maximum of normally 10,000 words, inclusive of footnotes, subject to the discretion of the Editor.
4. The author should also supply an abstract of the submission of no more than 200 words.
5. The article should be fully anonymised. The author should submit a separate document with the author's full name, present position, qualifications and contact details, including e-mail address.
6. The Canterbury Law Review is a fully refereed journal. Every paper submitted will be subject to an independent peer review process.
7. Articles must not have been published or under consideration for publication elsewhere.
8. On publication, copyright in the printed and electronic version will be vested in the Canterbury Law Review Trust. Authors may disseminate a copy of the final author's version submitted to the journal on platforms such as academia.edu, SSRN or Research Gate.

Papers and any queries should be forwarded to clr-ed@canterbury.ac.nz

The Canterbury Law Review has adopted the New Zealand Law Style Guide.

