WORKING ADVENTURES WORLDWIDE

Factors to consider

If working overseas is an option you are considering, begin your international job search in advance as it is likely to take some time to plan and organise. How easy it will be to achieve will depend on a number of factors including your ability to get work permits for other countries and the type of work you are seeking. If you are an international student, contact your family and friends to learn more about what is happening in the job market in your home country also.

Finding work overseas

UC CareerHub

Regularly check UC CareerHub, as some organisations recruit for international positions.

www.careerhub.canterbury.ac.nz

International job vacancy websites

Look at international job vacancy websites via the Careers, Internships & Employment website: www.canterbury.ac.nz/careers/student_graduate_employment/nz_international_job_search_links.shtml.

This weblink contains information on:

- Graduate Careers Australia.
- NZ & International job vacancy websites.
- Teaching English as a second language.
- Vacancies for Academic positions.
- Volunteer, relief & international development work.

Books

Careers, Internships & Employment stock a range of books to assist with finding work internationally which are available for loan. Books include:

- Careers in International Affairs.
- International Jobs: Where they Are, How to Get Them (6th edition).
- Teaching Overseas for Aussies and Kiwis.
- The Academic Job Search Handbook.
- Volunteer Work Overseas for Australian and New Zealanders.

Free booklets are published annually from Graduate Careers Australia covering how to find work in Australia. You can collect your copy annually from Careers, Internships & Employment (limited stock available) or read them as e-books online at www.graduateopportunities.com

Applying for jobs internationally

Recruitment and selection processes and practices, including CV/Resume writing, can vary in different countries. Careers, Internships & Employment recommends you look at:

- Prospects UK which contains information on applying for jobs in over 50 different countries around the world: www.prospects.ac.uk/country_profiles.htm
- Graduate Careers Australia which also contains information on applying for jobs in Australia <http://www.graduaterecruiters.com.au/CareerPlanningandResources/PreparingyourApplication/index.htm>

In some instances, overseas employers may not be familiar with New Zealand qualifications, so they may require more detail or explanation of your studies in your CV/Resume.

AIIESEC

AIIESEC is present in over 107 countries and territories and offers young people the opportunity to participate in international internships, experience leadership and participate in a global learning environment.
