Studies in Arts and the Community at UC

Mix-and-match

Arts subjects cover areas like sustainability, psychology, Māori and Indigenous studies, communication, human rights, linguistics, and social and youth work. With the range of options available, you can tailor your degree to your interests, or take something you've never studied before.

Indigenous knowledge

Kaupapa Māori is integrated into our courses, so you can learn about te ao Māori and understand the potential of Indigenous knowledge to address wider issues in our communities.

Explore Māori and Pacific storytelling by studying our new Indigenous Narrative minor, the first of its kind in Aotearoa. You can also take up Māori and Indigenous studies in many other ways — just speak to a Future Student Advisor.

Subject rankings

UC is ranked among the world's top 100 in Linguistics; top 200 in Political Science; and top 250 for Psychology (QS World University Rankings by Subject, 2024).

Work-Integrated Learning

Set yourself apart by engaging with UC's Work-Integrated Learning. As part of your degree, you are able to apply what you learn in your courses to practical settings like internships, projects, and competitions.

This hands-on approach not only enriches your education, but also helps you develop essential skills, gain valuable industry insights, and build a professional network. See page 31 to learn about our internship programme called PACE.

“The facilities at the University of Canterbury are phenomenal. With a vast range of access and accessibilities, some of them exclusive to UC, the University offers so much for students, such as myself, to get involved with.”

Student life

UC's campus culture makes for a great student experience. Our leafy green campus is nestled between moana (sea), maunga (mountains), and rangi (sky), and with the Ōtākaro Avon River winding through, there are many spots for you to take a breather.

Plus, we have 160+ active clubs, so you can balance out your studies with some fun. Some Arts clubs include:

- Classics Society (Classoc)
- French Society
- Musical Theatre Society (MUSOC)
- UC Anthropology
- UC Pols (Political Science)
- Education Society — Maturanga Porianga (Edsoc).

World leading research

Professor Bronwyn Hayward was made a Member of the Order of New Zealand in 2022 for her services to sustainability and youth and has extensive experience as a coordinating lead author, and review editor for UN's Intergovernmental Panel on Climate change (IPCC)

She is a Fellow of the New Zealand Royal society and internationally recognised for her work on sustainable development, urban policy and youth and was awarded a Kiwi Bank local hero award for sustainability and young people in 2020.

She uses her expertise in the field of sustainable development, poverty eradication, and reducing inequalities.

"We need transdisciplinary thinking to address complex, serious problems. Social sciences, humanities and creative arts training is vital alongside science and engineering to understand and tackle the world's most serious problems." — Bronwyn Hayward

"There is so much you can learn at UC, and by tailoring your learning experience, you can really maximise your opportunities. This flexibility is something that will help you discover more about yourself while better preparing you to go out into the field."

Degrees

Degrees are a type of qualification you can study at university — there are several types of qualifications varying in level of study and length of time, such as:

Bachelor's degrees

A bachelor's degree is an undergraduate qualification that usually takes 3–4 years to complete. We offer many bachelor's degrees.

Certificates and Diplomas

If you are unable to study a full degree, or want to add some additional study to your degree, you could complete a certificate or diploma. These have fewer courses and are often completed in 6 months to a year.

Subjects

Subjects are areas you can study in your degree. Some subjects you can continue from secondary school such as Music, Geography, English, while some you can start new at UC like Social Work, Linguistics, Marketing.

Major

A major is the main subject you choose to study all the way to the final year of your bachelor's degree. For example, a Bachelor of Arts majoring in History.

Double major

In some degrees, you are able to specialise in two main subjects — this is called a double major. These two majors can be completed in the same time as a single major.

Minor

A minor is another smaller subject focus you can take in your degree, which you won't study as extensively as a major. For example, a Bachelor of Arts majoring in Psychology with a minor in Spanish.

It is not compulsory to do a minor.

Specialisation

Specialisations combine different subjects together into a central theme. They allow you to specialise in multiple subjects all the way into your final year. These are offered within the Bachelor of Arts. See page 41.

Courses

A course is a specific topic within a subject, for example an American history course within the History subject. This involves lectures, assignments, and other forms of study. Your degree is made up of multiple courses.

Points

Each course has a points value — 1 point is equivalent to 10 hours of study. You will need to complete a certain number of points overall to successfully finish your study.

Semester

The academic year is split into three periods of study. One semester is the equivalent of two terms at secondary school.

- Semester 1: February – June
- Semester 2: July – November
- Summer: November – February.

Double and conjoint degrees

If you are really keen, you can combine bachelor's degrees. There are two ways of doing this — double and conjoint degrees.

Double degrees

Some bachelor's degrees can be studied together. This allows you to really specialise your study, opening up a wider range of career options.

Conjoint degrees

A conjoint takes a major from one degree and another major from another separate degree and combines them into one degree. Unlike double degrees, these must be completed at the same time, and involve a much higher workload each year.

There are currently three conjoint degrees with Arts:

- Conjoint Bachelor of Arts and Commerce
- Conjoint Bachelor of Arts and Science
- Conjoint Bachelor of Arts and Engineering with Honours.

The table below compares the two ways of studying:

	Double degree	Conjoint degree
Entrance requirements	University Entrance (UE).	UE and at least Level 3 endorsed in Merit.
Academic requirement to continue each year of degree	Standard passing grades apply.	Must maintain a grade average of at least a B each year.
Workload per year	Standard (120 points). Approximately eight (15-point) courses per year.	Increased (135 points). Approximately nine (15-point) courses per year. Must take at least one course from each qualification each year.
Graduate	You can either complete both at the same time or one after the other.	Both degrees must be completed before you can graduate.
Minimum timeframe	5–6 years (depending on degrees).	4 years.
Majors/minors	As required/permitted for each degree. Multiple majors (eg, double major in a single degree) and minors are possible.	Maximum of one major in each degree. Minors may be possible; and a minor is required for the BA.
Number of qualifications gained	Two — you gain both degrees.	One — a conjoint combines the courses into just one degree.

NOTE: A Future Student Advisor can help you plan your studies. See page 49 for contact details.

Ancient Greek

Studying Ancient Greek at UC will involve more than just the language; you will delve into Greek literature, history, politics, architecture, and philosophy.

Through your studies, you will be able to draw upon the past to better understand what is going on in the world right now as many modern concepts like democracy, theatre, and psychology originated in Greece.

What will my study involve?

- In-depth learning of ancient Greek culture through various topics in the original language.
- Get hands-on with our James Logie Memorial Collection of ancient artefacts in the Teece Museum of Classical Antiquities.
- UC hosts guest speakers from all over the world at public lectures and events.
- Study at Te Matatiki Toi Ora | Arts Centre campus.

Courses

Your first year involves learning beginner's Ancient Greek. Later you will read major texts of Greek epic poetry, drama, philosophy and more, under the guidance of research-active and internationally regarded staff.

If you know some Ancient Greek already, then you may enter straight into second-year courses.

Topics can include:

- grammar and vocabulary
- life and culture
- literature
- research projects.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Through learning the language and analysing ancient Greek culture, you will gain skills like research, analysis, attention to detail, critical thinking, and communication.

Career pathways could include:

- museums and libraries
- teaching and academia
- art and language conservation
- publishing.

Study Ancient Greek:

- Certificate in Languages
- Diploma in Languages

Anthropology

If you are interested in the history of our existence, languages and cultures, identity, and religion, then Anthropology is for you.

At UC, you will learn about our collective history, and explore future issues like the evolving role of technology in our lives, power structures and systemic issues, and where our global culture might be heading.

What will my study involve?

- Study topics that challenge your current way of thinking, and get you thinking deeply about the topic.
- Get hands-on experience with real ancient artefacts through UC's Teece Museum of Classical Antiquities, based at Te Matatiki Toi Ora | Arts Centre of Christchurch, with a collection spanning more than 2,500 years from about 2,000 BCE.
- Get involved on campus through clubs and advocacy.
- Combine your interests with other studies by adding Anthropology to many UC bachelor's degrees.

Courses

First-year courses will introduce you to various aspects of culture, and how it evolves over time due to political, economic, colonial, and social changes.

Topics can include:

- human origins and world history
- religion, witchcraft, and other rituals
- historical and contemporary racism
- family structures.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

You can tailor your studies in Anthropology to suit your job or career interests. The skills you learn through your studies like rational thinking, critical analysis, ethnography, cross-cultural communication, writing, and research can be used in other fields.

Career pathways could include:

- government and policy
- international relations and foreign affairs
- media and public relations
- social research.

Art History and Theory

This subject traces history and culture using artefacts, architecture, photos, and more. Learn to find meaning through objects and see how these affect our experiences.

What will my study involve?

- Learn in the main and city centre campuses.
- Get hands-on with our James Logie Memorial Collection of ancient artefacts in the Teece Museum of Classical Antiquities in the city, and Aotearoa New Zealand's cultural collections at Te Puna Rakahau o Macmillan Brown | Macmillan Brown Library on campus.
- Internship courses where you can gain practical skills and build connections.
- Combine Art History and Theory studies with other subject interests like Classics, Anthropology, and languages.

Courses

In your first year, you will cover topics in modern art by examining mediums like painting, photography, and film. You will also be introduced to architecture and objects in art history, and complete practical work with real artefacts.

Topics can include:

- Japanese art
- Indigenous art
- art in Europe
- visual culture like print, photography, and film.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Throughout your studies, you will practice skills like critical analysis, attention to detail, perspective, cultural awareness, and research.

By examining artworks, you will gain 'visual' literacy, a skill that is applicable to many areas and careers.

Career pathways could include:

- museum and gallery curatorship
- heritage conservation

Chinese

China is one of the world's oldest civilisations, with Mandarin Chinese spoken by more than half the world's population.

Studying Chinese gives you access to this economic power, with huge international influence and ever-growing relations with Aotearoa.

What will my study involve?

- Learn modern standard Chinese.
- Experience Chinese society, including literature, cinema, technology, and modern culture.
- UC's Confucius Institute, in collaboration with Huazhong University of Science and Technology, has opportunities to practise Chinese language and experience the culture on campus.
- Exchange opportunities with China, including business tours and language immersion with Chinese universities.

Courses

No previous knowledge of the Chinese language is required to study this subject at UC. Besides spoken and written Chinese language, other courses explore Chinese history, society, and achievements that have influenced the world.

If you know some Chinese already, then you may be given direct entry into second-year Chinese courses.

Topics can include:

- traditional and contemporary culture
- cinema
- global politics and international relations
- economy and trade.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Learning Chinese will open up work both in Aotearoa and overseas, including exchange opportunities while you are studying. There are lots of ways to strengthen your cross-cultural communication and awareness at UC.

Career pathways could include:

- interpreting and translation
- tourism and travel agencies
- business and trade relations
- immigration.

Cinema Studies

Film is a unique medium, in that there are so many ways to tell stories. The cultural impact and influence of cinema over the years has been huge.

This subject will introduce you to the tools and techniques used in film creation. In your classes, you will analyse the structure, cinematic style, and storytelling of films from diverse genres through the lens of theory, history, and culture.

What will my study involve?

- From the silent era of film to modern day – explore the evolution of movies and filmmaking.
- Other topics include analysis of scenes, screenwriting, exploration of Māori identity, storytelling for children, and the French New Wave.
- You can minor in Cinema Studies in many UC bachelor's degrees.

Courses

Besides film theory and history, in your first year you will analyse 12 films from 12 countries in 12 weeks as part of our 'Backpacker's Guide to World Cinema' course. In later years, you will explore particular cultural adaptations, genres, and styles of interest.

Topics can include:

- Māori film and media
- film history
- novels and film adaptations
- documentaries as a medium.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

You will learn the art of critical analysis for themes, theories, and technical aspects of filmmaking. Film is a broad medium, so there are many opportunities from writing and production to business and marketing in the industry.

Career pathways could include:

- filmmaking

Classics

Studying the ancient cultures of Greece and Rome shows us how our modern world formed. Everything from western politics to philosophy, science to architecture, language to storytelling had their origins in these great civilisations, and there are even connections we can make to current events today that have been experienced in the past.

At UC, you can customise your Classics studies with topics that interest you, such as art and architecture, politics, drama and written works, ancient language, and even sociology and daily life of the people.

What will my study involve?

- You will get hands-on experience with real ancient artefacts through UC's Teece Museum of Classical Antiquities, based at Te Matatiki Toi Ora | Arts Centre, with a collection spanning more than 2,500 years from about 2,000 BCE.
- Courses include areas such as history, slavery, sex and gender, warfare, art and architecture, political leaders, ancient literature, and philosophy.
- Option in your final year to take an internship, with past projects including museum and art curatorship work, events management, social media, and research of artefacts.

Courses

All our first year courses are designed to introduce a variety of aspects of the ancient world.

Topics can include:

- Greek and Roman mythologies
- Greek and Roman history
- beginner's Greek and Latin
- social and political systems.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Seeing the entire history of the Ancient Greek and Roman civilisations teaches you a lot about how to analyse events to understand other cultures and viewpoints, and how society and politics develop and work, especially towards world relations and current affairs.

Career pathways could include:

- museum curatorship
- political relations, foreign affairs, policy
- conservation and archaeology
- communications.

Communication Strategy and Practice

Communication is an essential part of any organisation and like any other process requires a strategic plan. This involves knowing who your audience is, what you want to say, how you want to say it, and continuing to maintain and develop relationships.

Through your study you will learn how to plan and manage campaigns using a mix of theory, technology, and case studies.

What will my study involve?

- Learn how to produce content for social media, websites, brochures, apps, and other platforms.
- Gain skills in crisis communications and reputation management.
- Participate in real-world projects in your final year through an internship or industry campaign.

- Take optional courses to complement your studies like advertising, entrepreneurship, linguistics, and politics.

Courses

First-year courses are introductory and will help you develop a broad skillset in media content production, planning, and research. From your second year onwards, you will be able to focus on strategic communications, managing media campaigns, and public response.

Topics can include:

- campaign development
- consumer behaviour and psychology
- market analysis
- communication for social change.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Through this major, you will learn how to balance strategic thinking, the needs of your stakeholders, and being creative. Your experience using various media platforms will make you adaptable to different communications needs and new media technologies.

Career pathways could include:

- stakeholder engagement
- public relations
- marketing and advertising
- writing, editing, publishing.

canterbury.ac.nz/life/jobs-and-careers

Study Communication Strategy and Practice:

- Bachelor of Communication

Community Music

Community musicians bring communities together through music for the purpose of health and wellbeing, social justice, and community cohesion.

A minor in community music will give you the musical skills and personal attributes needed to lead music-making in social and workplace settings.

What will my study involve?

- Create positive change in your local communities by encouraging participation in making music.
- Learn how music expresses and transmits cultural memory and cultural identity, including in indigenous cultures.
- Develop attributes like communication, patience, empathy, listening, and risk-taking that you can use in various settings.
- Complete an internship hosted by the Christchurch Symphony Orchestra and in partnership with other Christchurch organisations.

Courses

Topics can include:

- The role of music as an expression of a community's culture
- Using music to promote health and wellbeing and/or social justice
- Music in a Te Ao Māori context
- Internship in the local community

Career opportunities

Learn to facilitate and lead community music activities. Community musicians work in a range of contexts including education and healthcare in order to address community needs and promote positive social outcomes. The skills are also useful for anyone working with groups of people such as teaching, social work, group facilitation, and event management.

Creative Industries and Contemporary Practice

This specialisation is for those who want to be a part of the creative industry by combining artistic and business skills.

Study at least two areas of the creative arts of your choice (music and audio, film and media, art, and creative writing) through applied learning and theory.

What will my study involve?

- Study key industry skills like management, marketing, and communication.
- Choose your courses based on the creative industries you want to work in.
- Create practical projects and choose between a final-year internship or podcasting experience.

Courses

We will give you a range of experiences to develop industry knowledge. Each year you will choose courses from different creative pathways.

Topics can include:

- visual content design
- producing music
- social media marketing
- screenwriting.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

This degree can lead to a range of careers in the arts industry, such as producing, writing, management, and communications.

Career pathways could include:

- campaign and event management
- editing and publishing
- marketing art
- media production.

canterbury.ac.nz/life/jobs-and-careers

Study Creative Industries and Contemporary Practice:

- Bachelor of Arts

Cultural Heritage

If you are interested in galleries, libraries, archives, and museums, then this specialisation is for you. Explore culture through objects, ranging from contemporary art to archaeological remains to the built environment.

You will be able to look critically at our cultural heritage in Aotearoa, and apply these skills to international contexts.

What will my study involve?

- Study a range of cultures across the globe through different time periods.
- Courses can include areas such as history, art, warfare, language, and religion.
- Benefit from connections with local museums, art galleries, heritage archives, and libraries around Ōtautahi Christchurch, including internships.
- Practical experience with artefacts dated from 2,000 BCE with the Teece Museum of Classical Antiquities, located at Te Matatiki Toi Ora | Arts Centre.

Courses

Each year you will select courses depending on your interests in a particular culture, historical period, and society. In the final year, you will choose between practical heritage courses and an internship focused on your chosen areas.

Topics can include:

- revolution and change
- Māori history
- architecture
- shaping culture through art.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

A degree examining cultural heritage teaches you how history and culture has shaped everything we create. It prepares you for working with cultural and educational institutions, heritage conservation, or any sector which requires a high degree of multicultural competency.

Career pathways could include:

- iwi engagement and development
- curatorship
- communications
- art history.

Study Creative Industries and Contemporary Practice:

- Bachelor of Arts

Cultural Studies

In Cultural Studies, you will analyse film, social media, graphic novels, art, fashion, sport, and everyday activities with the aim of understanding how complex our culture is and how it shapes our identity.

This subject, like culture, is highly flexible; you can construct your own degree and choose to dive into what interests you the most.

What will my study involve?

- Create your own pathway of study, which might emphasise popular culture and media, gender and sexuality, human-animal studies, or culture in Aotearoa.
- Combine wide-ranging topics like cinema studies, digital humanities and online cultures, sociology, and Māori and Indigenous studies.
- Explore a range of theories, worldviews, and cultural texts and debates.
- Adding a minor in Cultural Studies with another degree will expand your perspective on culture and identity in your other studies.

Courses

Courses from many subjects are shared with Cultural Studies, including Anthropology, Chinese, Cinema Studies, Digital Humanities, English, History, Human Services, Māori and Indigenous Studies, Media and Communication, Music, and Sociology.

Topics can include:

- political and cultural activism
- sexuality and gender identity
- media and film
- colonisation and indigenous cultures.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

From the careful consideration of different aspects of culture, you will be able to develop a broad skillset including critical thinking, analysis, communication, writing, and research.

Your study can be applied to a variety of fields making it easy for you to move in the job market.

Career pathways could include:

- arts management
- journalism, editing, and publishing
- public relations and advocacy
- campaign management.

Digital Humanities

Digital Humanities explores our digital technologies and their effect on our new ways of thinking, living, and working.

UC is the only university in Aotearoa where you can study this subject and learn to apply digital tools and methods.

What will my study involve?

- Learn about new technologies such as web analytics, social media platforms, digital music, robotics, virtual reality.
- Complete practical projects, training, and internships with Te Pokapū Aronui ā-Matihiko | UC Arts Digital Lab.
- Minor within several bachelor's degrees so you can apply digital tools to your other study interests.

Courses

These courses train you to create and apply digital solutions for industry, and explore how our reliance on technology has changed our collective culture.

Topics can include:

- social media trends
- human-robot interactions
- geographic information systems
- online communities.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

This study will make you highly adaptable to learning, training, and advising on new digital trends. Any industry from creative media, cultural heritage, business, policy, and more will benefit from your technical and analytical skills.

Economics

Economics is the study of how people behave and make decisions — how we use our resources, how we deal with issues like climate change, which career we choose, and more. These decisions involve trade-offs between costs and benefits, and we are constantly considering these in our everyday life.

At UC, there are lots of opportunities to gain experience including industry projects, internships, clubs, and overseas study trips.

What will my study involve?

- Learn about the impact of your choices on the world, and how foreign countries impact Aotearoa New Zealand's economy.
- Option for a final-year internship.
- Economics major and minor is available in many degrees so you can combine studies with other relevant areas such as Finance, Product Design, Political Science and International Relations, and Psychology.

Courses

First-year courses are introductory and teach you the basics of micro and macroeconomics. More advanced courses expand into areas such as market and organisational behaviour, and public policy.

Topics can include:

- international trade
- consumer and business behaviour
- developmental economics
- environmental economics.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

By analysing the impact of choices by government, consumers, and businesses, you will learn important skills like critical thinking, understanding risk, and forecasting to help make better decisions.

Career pathways could include:

- professional economist
- market research
- data analyst
- banking and investment.

Education

Learning is something we do every day. It happens in more places than the classroom like community settings, the workplace, art, sport, and even gaming.

Studying Education will give you the knowledge to understand how human development and learning are shaped by the history and context of Aotearoa New Zealand, and the opportunities and challenges we face in designing inclusive and effective educational experiences for everyone.

What will my study involve?

- Study topics like child and adolescent development, and social and cultural studies in education.
- Education can be studied as a major or a minor and combined with many different degrees, so you are able to study Education alongside your other subject interests.

Courses

The first-year courses will give you the foundations of educational, learning, and human development theories, concepts, and processes.

The following years offer a range of optional courses so you can customise your study to focus on educational and developmental psychology, policy, or social justice.

Topics can include:

- educational philosophy and policy in Aotearoa
- diversity in education — culture, sexuality, gender, ability
- promoting social and emotional learning and wellbeing within and through education
- globalisation, social justice, and the future of education.

English

Studying literature opens up worlds and times beyond our experience, helping us understand and reflect on our own history, society, and identity. It builds core skills for study, career, and daily life.

What will my study involve?

- Learn how to analyse texts, write clearly and creatively, debate and critique effectively, and how literature adapts to cultural and historical influences.
- Chance to create your own fictional or non-fictional works, from poetry to novels to essays in a variety of different courses.
- Alongside courses on the novel, theatre, and 20th century literature, we also offer courses in fields such as children's literature, human-animal studies, and popular fiction (including science fiction, horror, and fantasy).

Courses

You will get to choose from a range of topics each year of your degree, starting with the basics of academic and/or creative writing techniques, analysing themes and genres, and exploring some of the greatest literature works throughout history.

Topics can include:

- science fiction, crime thriller, and other genres
- creative writing – screen, stage, novels, and more
- film adaptations
- exploring culture, identity, and sexuality through literature.

Environmental Policy, Governance and Social Justice

To make just and sustainable decisions for the environment and our wellbeing, we must learn to see how politics, social behaviour, and business economics can both cause and improve issues. Demand for products and services can lead to problems such as pollution, slave labour and workers' rights, and Indigenous land disputes.

In this subject, you will examine global sustainability and social equity issues and learn how to respond with actionable change to communities and businesses.

What will my study involve?

- Connect your study to real-world problems through field studies and an internship.
- Build upon UC's sustainability goals and use our local and international connections with industry.
- Courses include a range of areas like political science and law, philosophy and ethics, economics, social enterprise, sociology, and psychology so you can follow your interests in particular issues.
- Engage with ideas of mātauranga Māori (knowledge), Pacific history, decolonisation, and tino rangatiratanga (authority).

Courses

All our first-year courses are designed to introduce you to a variety of sustainability and humanitarian concepts, including political science, philosophy, and health.

Topics can include:

- systems and social change
- environmental politics and policy
- Māori and Indigenous knowledge
- environmental science and natural resource management.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Learning about sustainability from a policy and social justice point of view teaches you how to critically analyse systems and enact social change that is inclusive of other cultures, communities, and businesses.

Career pathways could include:

- policy and advisory
- non-profit sector
- marketing, communications, and events
- business operations management.

European and European Union Studies

With 27 member states and 450 million people, the European Union (EU) is Aotearoa New Zealand's most significant bilateral partner after Australia and China and is one of the world's leading political and trading blocs. Europe provides an important reference point to Aotearoa and the global community in cultural, linguistic, and political aspects.

Your study will look into current events as well as history, language, and culture that have shaped Europe and the European Union.

What will my study involve?

- Choose from a broad range of topics including the political, economic, cultural, and social integration of modern-day and historical Europe.
- Get taught by members of the National Centre for Research on Europe (NCRE), Aotearoa New Zealand's only research centre devoted to study of Europe and the EU.
- Opportunity to complete an international or virtual exchange with UC's European partner universities.

Courses

Learn about the different regions that make up Europe and the EU, its cultural diversity, and the political landscape from its creation through to today. You will also be able to include study in a European language as part of the degree, choosing from German, French, Russian, or Spanish.

Topics can include:

- EU and global affairs
- film and literature
- East European communism
- politics.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Studying European and European Union Studies will open up a wide range of careers in Aotearoa and abroad. Your skills and knowledge provide you with a unique perspective on Europe and the EU in various industries, from politics to education to humanities.

Study Language, Brain and Behaviour:

- Bachelor of Arts

Latin

Latin is one of the oldest languages in the western world, and many modern European languages such as Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, French, and English share their origins with this ancient language.

Studying Latin gives you an in-depth look at Ancient Rome, whose politics and culture have influenced the systems we use in the modern world today.

What will my study involve?

- Learn about the history and culture of Ancient Rome through its original language, epic poetry, letters, satire, and drama.
- Access to the Teece Museum of Classical Antiquities which contains artefacts, including inscriptions, of direct relevance to the literary world of the Romans.
- Study courses at Te Matatiki Toi Ora | Arts Centre campus.

Courses

The beginner Latin courses in the first year include reading Latin and grammar studies. Advanced Latin courses in the later years examine literary works and documents from Ancient Rome in their original language.

If you know some Latin already, then you may be given direct entry into second-year Latin courses.

Topics can include:

- Latin authors, such as Vergil and Cicero
- graffiti, inscriptions, and everyday Latin
- translation exercises
- Latin and evolution through modern European languages.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

As well as research and conservation work on Rome and the Ancient Mediterranean culture and artefacts, having advanced knowledge of Latin can be of use in industries such as government, law, medicine, and a variety of science fields.

Career pathways could include:

- museums and galleries
- publishing or editing
- teaching
- archaeology.

Study Latin:

- Certificate in Languages
- Diploma in Languages

Linguistics

Linguistics is the analysis of languages — from structure, how and why they change, to the way we learn and our unique way of speaking.

By understanding how language is a part of everything we do, you can better understand how communication shapes our identity, relationships, and way of life.

What will my study involve?

- Opportunity to learn from research conducted here at UC.
- UC offers many language studies to complement Linguistics, such as Te Reo Māori, Chinese, Russian, and Japanese.
- Study a minor in Linguistics within a range of bachelor's degrees so you can add communication skills and knowledge to other subjects.

Courses

In the first year, you will learn the basics of English language and Aotearoa New Zealand society, before going on to more advanced analysis and research of language meaning and psychology. You will also complete at least one course from a language other than English within your study.

Topics can include:

- phonetics
- forensic linguistics
- text analytics
- language acquisition and processing.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Because linguistics is a scientific field of study and involves other areas like history and culture, you gain an in-depth understanding of language, how the brain works, and the use of language in our world. You will learn skills like analysis, research, innovative thinking, problem-solving, and cross-cultural communication.

Career pathways could include:

- translation and interpreting
- marketing
- proofreading and editing
- language teaching.

Māori and Indigenous Studies

Māori and Indigenous Studies is a broad subject that explores the culture, knowledge, and philosophies of Māori and Indigenous peoples, and their economic, political, and social experiences.

These studies are increasingly seen as central to biculturalism in Aotearoa as well as in our global multicultural society.

What will my study involve?

- Study a range of historical and contemporary issues that Indigenous people face such as their relationship to science and politics, public services, and material culture.
- Aotahi: School of Māori and Indigenous Studies operates as a whānau to help you explore the heritage of Aotearoa.
- Take this subject as a minor in a wide range of bachelor's degrees so you can combine your other subjects with mātauranga Māori.

Courses

Courses in this subject are open to everyone, even if you have not experienced Māori culture before. Topics will explore everything from cultural practice, colonial history, racism, and inequality, through to world impact from media, sport, and music.

Topics can include:

- philosophies and spiritual beliefs
- Māori film
- representation in media
- traditional and contemporary cultural practices.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Learning perspectives and history from Indigenous peoples is an important and rewarding skill to have, and is often looked for in employees, particularly in countries like Aotearoa and USA as they have a strong Indigenous presence.

Careers are opening in iwi and other Māori organisations, public health, research, teaching, government organisations, and the wider community.

Career pathways could include:

- policy analysis and advisory
- community development
- curator and collection management
- training and professional development.

Mathematical Sciences Education

Mathematical Sciences Education enables you to explore how mathematics, statistics, and data can inform and change how our society works.

In today's data-driven world, mathematics is increasingly important in technical analysis, policy making, education, health, media, and decision making. Mathematical Sciences Education allows you to balance developing your technical expertise in mathematics with the critical skills of communicating and problem solving.

What will my study involve?

- Develop your maths and teaching abilities with learning tools and methods such as applied mathematics, computer-assisted learning, and modern maths.

- Explore how maths, statistics, and data can inform and change how our society works, such as in policy and social contexts.
- Practical experiences tutoring in UC courses, workshops, schools, and community programmes.
- Prioritised pathway to becoming a registered maths or statistics teacher through one-year graduate teaching degrees at UC.

Courses

This major will introduce you to the science and psychology of examining and explaining complicated maths to others and includes a selection of mathematics topics each year of study so you can customise your knowledge.

Introductory courses are available for those without a strong background in maths or statistics study.

Topics can include:

- communicating maths
- how people learn
- statistics and social development
- tutoring practice.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Your study can open career pathways in fields needing graduates who can apply mathematical theory to make critical changes and examine social issues in areas such as policy, development, and research.

UC also offers a number of programmes to set you towards registration as a professional teacher in Aotearoa schools.

Career pathways could include:

- mathematics or statistics teacher
- data analyst
- policy advisor
- statistics researcher.

Mathematics

Mathematics is at the forefront of breakthroughs in science, technology, and finance. It has been around for over 4,000 years and is still an innovative subject with new ideas, techniques, and theories constantly being created, tested, and explored.

Being a mathematician puts you one step ahead in preparing for the technological advances of the coming generation.

What will my study involve?

- Study topics such as pure and applied mathematics, modern mathematical theories, key uses, and breakthroughs in mathematical history.
- A wide range of mathematics courses to customise your study and gain skills towards particular career paths.
- Research projects within UC and in connection with industry.

Courses

First-year courses cover the basics of advanced mathematics such as calculus and linear algebra with later courses offering a wide range of topics to choose from, including mathematical philosophy, history, and culture.

We offer introductory maths courses for those who don't have a strong background in maths or statistics.

Topics can include:

- mathematical modelling
- dynamic and non-linear systems
- computational mathematics
- cryptography and coding theory.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Because maths is used almost everywhere, a Mathematics major will open up many different career options. Roles in information technologies, finance, business, scientific research, law, teaching, and other fields will make the most of your logical reasoning skills.

Professional and Community Engagement

Professional and Community Engagement (PACE) courses are all about applying what you learn in your studies to a non-academic "real-world" setting.

PACE is an ideal complement to your degree – take it as a one-off course or as a minor in your degree programme. PACE courses provide an opportunity to give you confidence in the workplace.

What will my study involve?

- Half of PACE courses are held as workshops where you can develop professional skills and half in the workspace where you can put that knowledge to use.
- You will be matched with your internship based on your studies and your interests. Past internships include media and communications, event organisation, marketing, health, and policy analysis.

Courses

From second year, you can add a workplace project or an internship to your studies.

Topics can include:

- internship projects (based on your degree subject)
- project management process
- career development portfolio and CV building
- presentation skills.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

PACE students have an edge over other graduates. Learning to identify the strengths you bring to the workplace and understanding how your degree has prepared you to work with local and international communities will give you the confidence you need to enter your new career.

Sustainable Business, Enterprise and Economics

With businesses expanding across the globe, we need more people with the skills to help manage economic growth with environmental issues like pollution and use of natural resources.

This major covers everything from sustainable products, production, shipping, and marketing, through to influencing changes in customer spending habits.

What will my study involve?

- Get hands-on experience creating sustainable business solutions through an internship.
- Learn business basics of management, economics, accounting, marketing, or communications with how these affect our views and treatment of the environment.
- Opportunities to create your own business with UC's mentors, business connections, and a Makerspace.

- Customisable major so you can follow your interests in particular sustainability issues and industry.

Courses

The first year allows you to choose from a range of introductory business courses so you can learn the fundamentals of running a business and study sustainability issues that interest you.

Topics can include:

- environmental economics
- business organisation
- natural resources and supply chain management
- media and marketing.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Every industry needs to find more sustainable practices, and there are few people in the current job market with knowledge of both business economics and environmental science to help achieve this. Your problem-solving skills will help lead us to better corporate responsibility and sustainable consumption of goods.

Career pathways could include:

- management
- business analysis and consulting
- marketing
- entrepreneurship.

- Bachelor of Social and Environmental Sustainability

Tauwhitinga Māori: Māori Communication Strategy and Practice

Māori communication is very important for businesses in Aotearoa, as they are increasingly looking for ways to include Māori culture and heritage in their media, advertising, communications, and everyday practices.

This major is ideal for anyone looking to bring about social change, and help industries engage strongly with our bicultural nation.

What will my study involve?

- Specialised knowledge as this is the only major of its kind in Aotearoa on Māori communication strategy and Kaupapa Māori (values and goals) in professional workplaces.
- Learn to create public-facing content representing Māori, from print to television to social media.
- Internship projects during your degree will place you within iwi businesses, communication agencies, and other local UC contacts.
- This major can be studied alongside other courses such as Te Reo Māori, History, and Geography.

Courses

Specific courses for this major begin in the second year of the degree, where you can advance your communication skills through Māori media channels, and explore how Māori values and traditions can adapt to media and cultural shifts.

Topics can include:

- Māori transformation in modern society
- campaign messaging and advertising
- television and film industry
- Māori as changemakers and trendsetters.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Bicultural practice and expertise are in high demand in many industries. You will be particularly good at advising or creating content for iwi, government, creative, education, or business communication.

You may even find work internationally in places where experience in Indigenous communications and engagement are especially needed, for example in Australia, Canada, and the USA.

Career pathways could include:

- marketing analysis
- media content creation
- public outreach and relations
- campaign management.

Study Tauwhitinga Māori:

- Bachelor of Communication

Te Reo Māori

Learning te reo Māori enables us to explore our identity as New Zealanders and pass on our passion to others and future generations.

Te Reo Māori is a highly recommended study option for those who might work with Indigenous people or industries, or in education, public, or communications roles that require bicultural and multicultural competency.

What will my study involve?

- Develop your reo skills and learn about language revitalisation, bilingual/immersion education, reo history, and contemporary language.
- Take part in wānanga reo (language immersion field trips) to local marae.
- Be a part of our whānau at Aotahi: School of Māori and Indigenous Studies with support and guidance in and out of classes.
- Complete a minor in Te Reo Māori within many bachelor's degrees to combine language skills with your other study interests.

Courses

No previous experience of te reo Māori is required for first year courses, with later courses advancing you through to fluency level.

If you know some te reo Māori already, then you may be given direct entry into second-year te reo Māori courses.

Topics can include:

- contemporary reo language
- oral and written traditions
- kapa haka and performance
- film, music, and media.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Careers are opening up with the increasing role of Māori as a defining element of our national culture. Te Reo Māori skills are sought after in health, media, government, tourism, social services, and many other industries.

Career pathways could include:

- community leadership
- journalism
- heritage and cultural organisations
- interpreting and translation.

Youth Work and Development

The Youth Work and Development pathway is the perfect option for you if you want to make an impact in the lives of youth and their whānau. Working with young people is an immensely rewarding career where you mentor and lead young people to reach their full potential.

What will my study involve?

- Learn about the expectations and challenges of growing up in today's society, and develop leadership skills to help find their potential.
- Act now with off-campus and hands-on projects and internships so you can start making change while studying (eg, addressing topics such as climate change, young people's health and wellbeing, human trafficking, and planning events for the Rainbow community).
- Only university degree in Aotearoa that meets the requirements for professional membership with Korowai Tupu | Professional Association for Youth Work in Aotearoa.

Courses

This pathway includes select courses that prepare you to be a professional youth worker. These courses will examine the issues young people face today — from identity to sexuality to online spaces — while building your leadership skills with practical projects and internships.

Topics can include:

- leadership strategies
- youth rights and discrimination
- how children and teenagers develop
- refugees, minorities, and Indigenous communities.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Supporting and inspiring youth from a place of knowledge and understanding leads to many rewarding work roles.

Training in youth work opens up career possibilities in social and human services, iwi, and educational spaces connecting directly with Aotearoa youth, or through making positive changes at a higher level to the systems that affect their rights and wellbeing.

Career pathways could include:

- youth worker
- community development worker
- programme coordinator
- welfare supporter.

canterbury.ac.nz/life/jobs-and-careers

Study Youth Work and Development:

- Bachelor of Youth and Community Leadership
- Certificate of Youth and Community Leadership

As a Minor:

- Bachelor of Psychological Science

Youth and Community Leadership

Youth and Community Leadership explores national and global challenges that impact today's youth and our communities, and looks at ways to create meaningful change through leadership.

You can study a range of issues like social justice, sustainability, policy, and equity. You can also focus on communities that you want to make a difference in.

What will my study involve?

- Work closely with UC's active student community who have led efforts in natural disaster relief, social causes, wellbeing, sustainability, and cultural diversity.
- Connect with community through noho marae, volunteering with Te Hunga Tūao | Student Volunteer Army, and work with Te Mātāpuna Mātātahi | Children's University.
- On completion of the recommended courses for youth work and development, you can apply for membership to Korowai Tupu, the Professional Association for Youth Work in Aotearoa.
- Act now with off-campus and hands-on projects and internships so you can start making change while studying (eg, addressing topics such as climate change, young people's health and wellbeing, human trafficking, and planning events for the Rainbow community).

Courses

First-year courses introduce you to your role in youth and community leadership. This involves building self-awareness and engaging with mātauranga Māori perspectives. You will also learn about youth work as a professional practice in Aotearoa.

Topics can include:

- group leadership
- community engagement
- cultural activism
- social justice and globalisation.

canterbury.ac.nz/courseinfo

Career opportunities

Develop skills in leadership, entrepreneurship, project management, bicultural competence, collaboration, and community engagement to get you ready for a career with youth and community. What you will learn can be applied to community leadership worldwide.

Career pathways could include:

- youth work
- policy analysis and advisory
- iwi and Māori development
- teaching and training.

Bachelor of Arts. BA

Bachelor of Arts – Major/minor pathway example degree structure

Each small block represents a 15-point course. However, some courses may be 30 points or more. This diagram is an example only – other combinations are possible. For specific course requirements, go to canterbury.ac.nz/regulations

With 40 subjects to choose from, BA students can follow their passion and gain valuable skills.

Over the three years of your degree, you will gain the critical thinking, creative problem-solving, and communication skills that employers want. Unique practical experiences such as internships are on offer too.

BA with two pathways

You have the option of following the traditional pathway to gain a major and a minor in the BA or to take the specialisation pathway with a set programme of courses. In your first year, you will choose two broad arts skill courses from:

- academic writing
- critical thinking
- bicultural identity.

Major and minor pathway

There are over 30 Arts subjects that you can major in and many more minors – including subjects from other degrees. You can choose to do a double major, or a major and minor.

You can customise your study even further by doing a double or a conjoint degree (see page 7) – tailoring your studies to suit you.

Pastoral Care

The Education (Pastoral Care of Tertiary and International Learners) Code of Practice 2021 is designed to guide institutions in their practice and to protect students when they study in Aotearoa. UC is a signatory to the Code and is required to meet the standards set by the New Zealand government.

“Within my class, we’re all very much a whānau. We’ve built a connection, going from strangers to family, which is a credit to our teachers for creating that environment of safety and belonging — that’s whanaugatanga. And tiakitanga reminds me of the whole UC experience — everyone doing what they can.”
