Receiving scholarships during my time at the University of Canterbury has enabled me to pursue meaningful kaupapa Māori health research while continuing my journey towards becoming a registered Health Psychologist. Their support eased the financial burden of postgraduate study and allowed me to focus on developing the skills and experiences needed to contribute to equitable health outcomes for Māori impacted by serious illness.

Receiving the Robert Bell Travelling tell the story of nurse Hani Sipu, who works in a closed aboriginal township in the Northern Territory.

Having the scholarship meant myself and videographer Carson Bluck were able to apply for permission to travel into Ngukurr, which requires a permit, and see the work Sipu is doing firsthand.

After visiting Sipu, we created a short film of our experience with Sipu and the value she has found in working in the Outback. We were also able to interview several other Kiwis about the successes and hardships they have found through moving to Australia.

My experience, particularly in the Northern Territory, will stay with me forever and hopefully be a record of how New Zealanders like Sipu are making a difference abroad.

This scholarship has supported my studies towards a PhD in Law at the University of Cambridge and has been instrumental in my academic journey. It seems especially fitting that my studies at University of Canterbury were in music, and that my time in Cambridge has been greatly enriched by musical opportunities, including serving as Organ Scholar of the Chapel Choir at Christ's College, Cambridge. The scholarship has allowed me to pursue excellence in both law and music, two disciplines that have shaped my education and personal development. The scholarship allowed me to focus on my studies without the added pressure of finances, giving me the time and energy to fully commit to my mahi. The support from NTRC, alongside inspiring lecturers and supervisors, made a huge difference to both my confidence and academic performance.

Frequently Asked Questions

Check out answers to our most commonly asked questions for the Postgraduate Scholarship round.

What if I am not sure I meet all the eligibility criteria of this scholarship?

If you aren't 100% sure if you meet all the criteria, we encourage you to still apply for the scholarship. We'd rather you not miss out on a scholarship you would have been eligible for. You are welcome to email, call or visit us to clarify anything.

What if my chosen referee has not submitted their reference on time?

If you have submitted your application but your reference is not received by the referee closing date, your application will still be sent to the Selection Committee for consideration as the references are only part of what they will be looking at.

Can I change or update my application?

Even if you have already submitted your application, you can re-enter and edit any statement answers prior to the closing date. After the closing date has passed, you will be locked out of changing anything in your application. We also cannot update/change or add anything on your behalf.

Can I submit a late application?

No, we do not accept late applications. It is essential that you submit your application before the closing date and time.

When will I know the outcome of my application(s)?

Applications are not assessed until after the scholarship close date. We then undertake eligibility checks to determine if an applicant is eligible for the scholarship. All eligible applications are then sent to the selection committee for consideration.

Due to the time of year these applications close, there can be delays in awarding due to end-of-year exams, result release and Christmas holidays. We strive to have an outcome before the last working day of the year but occasionally we do not hear back from the Selection Committees until mid/late January.

Will I be notified if I am not selected for a scholarship?

Yes, you will receive an outcome notification email from admin@communityforce.com notifying you if you were or were not selected for the scholarship.

What if I have been offered multiple scholarships that are not co-tenable?

Offers will be sent for all scholarships you are selected for, so you may receive offers for two or more scholarships which are not co-tenable with each other. Co-tenability information is provided in both the scholarship regulations and the scholarship offer. Get in contact with us and we can work out the best way forward for you.

I have been offered a scholarship, but I am still awaiting results of other scholarships I have applied for - should I accept my offer or wait to hear the outcome of the other scholarships?

For most scholarships, you have one month to accept your offer before it lapses. You are welcome to hold off on accepting until just before this deadline. Let us know if you plan on holding off on accepting so we don't send too many follow up reminders. You can also reach out to us via email, calling or visiting our office and explain your situation - we may be able to see how far along the selection committee is to deciding the awardee(s) and be able to best advise you on your next steps.
