Number Noughts and Crosses

Challenge your partner to a game of noughts and crosses with numbers in German. You can play the best of three, or if you have time, - make it the best of seven games! Use a different colour pen than your partner, so you can tell whose squares are whose.

You can play paper, scissors, rock, to decide who starts. The player who starts, chooses any one of the 9 squares to start in, says the number in German, and then writes the number in German correctly as indicated below each box. Each player tries to get three in a row. The first player to write three numbers in German correctly wins!
