Media Release

Date: 18.07.2016

RMLA Masters scholarships up for grabs

If you are undertaking post-graduate studies in a field related to resource management practice and/or law, now is the time to apply for funding from the RMLA.

The Resource Management Law Association’s scholarship programme provides an annual funding pot of NZ$15,000 to encourage graduate students studying law, planning, engineering, geography, science, landscape architecture, urban planning and resource management, to focus their research theses or dissertations on topics related to the application of resource management in New Zealand.

The RMLA scholarships, worth NZ$5,000 each, are open to any graduate student in a University (New Zealand or Overseas) registered for a Masters degree (including an undergraduate Honours degree involving advanced levels of research and study at Masters degree level).

All scholarship winners will also see their thesis published in RMLA’s renowned Resource Management Journal. In this respect, RMLA scholarships provide an excellent platform for students to showcase their work to RMLA’s membership, which spans a broad spectrum of professions throughout New Zealand, representing 561 organisations across 27 industry sectors.

The RMLA provides an unrivalled networking opportunities for students and seasoned practitioners alike. It brings together lawyers, barristers, planners, environmental managers, environmental engineers, environment commissioners, consultants and civil servants and more, to share perspectives, information and best practice in urban and rural development, environmental law, planning and natural resource management.

To apply for an RMLA scholarship, simply download the RMLA Scholarship Application here and return it to karol.helmink@rmla.org.nz before September 01, 2016.

*Please note that Doctoral studies are not eligible.

---ENDS---
For media enquiries, please contact:

Rikki Stancich
Communications and Sponsorship Manager
Tel - 022 369 9116 | E - rikki.stancich@rmla.org.nz

About RMLA:

Founded in 1992, the Resource Management Law Association (RMLA) is a multi-disciplinary membership organisation Association with over 1100 members including lawyers, planners, environmental managers, scientists, engineers, architects, local authority and central government officers. The RMLA seeks to promote within New Zealand an understanding of resource management law and its implementation; excellence in resource management policy and practice; resource management processes which are legally sound, effective and efficient; and which produce high-quality environmental outcomes.